

Drought Tolerant and California Native Plants

Native and Drought Tolerant Gardens require less water, are easy to care for and provide food and habitat to butterflies, birds and other wildlife.

A Native Garden often incorporates beautiful natural elements such as rocks, bioswales, flowering native plants, and succulents that match the local environment.

